“Innovation is the ability to see change as an opportunity”

- Steve Jobs

Dear Readers,

The prestigious editorial board of the Innovative publication journals is composed of a group of highly skilled professionals from a variety of academic and research sectors. Experiences from one another teach us things, and our patients are the source of all that we learn. With an emphasis on current advancements in the field of dental imaging, the International Journal of Maxillofacial Imaging aims to publish the most recent breakthroughs in important concerns, foster idea sharing, and disseminate the most recent discoveries in basic research, clinical translation, and regulatory challenges. It is unusual to have this much variety of journals on one platform.

All submissions for the quarterly IJMI are accepted electronically. The Editorial Board, an electronic platform used to oversee all journals, manages the submission and review process. I'm sure this manuscript submission method will be simple and intuitive for both writers and reviewers.

Ultimately, I hope that our Journal will become the leading platform for researchers to discuss and share findings while debating all aspects of the development of future discoveries that will benefit society as a whole.

With sincere regards to all of you readers who never cease to inspire us so much.
